Esther Hopkinson's World Includes Music, Travel

By JEANNETTE BEFAME

MISS Esther Hopkinson's world includes music, travel and a love of clothes. Although reputed to be one of the youngest voice teachers in Sacramento, Miss Hopkinson claims her music is a sideline. She really loves to dance, swim, travel and wear nice clothes.

"I suppose it might be said that I inherit my musical instincts," she opined. "You see, my father's family included several famous choir masters in Sheffield, England. And dad himself has done a lot to encourage me."

Considered Art Career

When Miss Hopkinson first started thinking about a career, and that was while she was a student at Sacramento junior college, she seriously thought about art. Then at Mills college, she decided to major in fine arts, which included music, art and drama.

And in the spring of 1939, when she did right well in a proficiency voice recital at Mills, she decided that singing was her first love. So she furthered her voice in Sacramento studios. Then upon her graduation from Mills, in June, '39, she opened up her own studio.

Directs Vesper Choir

Miss Hopkinson, who is 24, divides her time between church work and club activities. She directs the vesper choir of First Baptist church. She also is counselor of the college class of the church.

While at junior college Miss Hopkins was active in Sigma Iota Chi activities. Other affiliations include membership in the Mills Alumnae club and the Saturday club.

Designs Own Clothes

Like any other young girl, Miss Hopkinson believes that marriage is much more important than a career.

She explains her love for clothes by adding that she has loads of fun designing her own. If a note of personal observation is in order, we can say that she certainly can be rated among the city's better dressed.

Traveled to Europe

Miss Hopkinson spends some time at a bridge table, but can think of other things she would rather be doing—for instance, whipping up a set of tennis.

With her parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. J. Hopkinson, she traveled to Europe in 1937. Since traveling is one of her hobbies, she also has made it a point to see America first.

TODAY'S PERSONALITY sketch introduces Miss Esther Hopkinson, one of Sacramento's youngest voice teachers, who comes from a family of English choir masters. Miss Hopkinson takes an active part in club work, church work, and still finds time to dance, swim, play tennis, design her clothes.

Many of the same principals who helped launch the Sacramento Light Opera Guild upon a successful cruise of H. M. S. Pinafore a year ago will polish up their Gilbert and Sullivan mannerisms for the first light opera of the current season, The Gondoliers, which is set for January 25th and 26th in the Junior College Auditorium. But there will be some new names and faces as well in this production, which will be staged and directed by Bernard Callery.

Stewart Tulley, dignified music instructor choir leader and McNeill Club conductor, will disport in the ludicrous role of the Duke of Plaza Toro. His consort, the duchess, will be Catherine Rue, an operatic contralto who returned to Hollywood a few months ago after a brief residence in Sacramento. She will come north for this production since she also is scheduled to appear with the Oakland Symphony Orchestra as guest artist in a concert January 24th.

Stanley Noonan, who won definite recognition as a baritone of promise this past season with the San Francisco Opera Company, again will sing the leading baritone role—that of Luis. Charles Merrick, tenor, and Nedric Baugh, baritone, will be respectively Marco and Giuseppe Palmieri; Jack Berger will be Don Alhambra del Bolero. Esther Hopkinson Casilda, daughter of the duke and duchess, June Hezmalhalch Gianetta, Elizabeth Demmon Tessa, Mildred Carman Flanetta and Phoebe Howard Inez.

The scenery is being designed by Beverly Wright, director of the Sacramento Art Center, and constructed under the direction of Raymond Rhodes of the junior college drama department.

SYNOPSIS:

ACT I
Marco and Guiseppe are two gondoliers much beloved by the girls of Venice. Returning the compliment, the two gondoliers decide to get married, and through the simple process of a game of blindman's buff, they select their ladies. Wonders of wonders, these are the very girls they wanted! (Their fellow gondoliers accuse them of cheating, however, and there is a certain amount of bitterness). However everyone parts with the friendliest of feeling, determining to celebrate as soon as possible.

The Duke of Plaza-Toro, his wife, the Duchess, their daughter, Casilda, and their "suite" Luiz arrive in Venice, and inform their daughter that she was wed while yet a child to the son of the King of Barataria. The son was stolen in infancy and brought to Venice. No sooner do the Duke and Duchess leave than we can detect a definite romance springing up between Casilda and Luiz.

Don Alhambra Del Bolero (the Grand Inquisitor) informs everyone at this moment that there is some doubt as to the King's whereabouts, and since the King of Barataria has just died, Casilda is a queen, (if they can find the King.) In the meantime, Marco and Guiseppe have been married, and, in the midst of happiness, Don Alhambra tells them that one of them is really the King of Barataria, but both must reign jointly until the true king is found, and both must leave immediately!

ACT II
Marco and Guiseppe rule a very undignified court. But they miss their wives, who arrive in the nick of time to prevent further complications. Everything ends happily for them, however, and the king is dramatically announced, to the general joy and happiness of the court.

STANLEY NOONAN

Stanley Noonan Won Spurs In Grand Opera—Prepares For Two Appearances Here

Stanley Noonan, young Sacramento baritone who won recognition as a singer of promise in his first roles with the San Francisco Opera Company during the recent season, is dividing his time these days between the bay city, where he is continuing his studies and filling occasional engagements, and Sacramento, where he is rehearsing the leading romantic role of Luis in The Gondoliers, the Gilbert and Sullivan operetta to be presented next Thursday and Friday evenings by the Sacramento Light Opera Guild.

He also is preparing his recital program for the Saturday Club concert of February 6th.

Noonan will be remembered for his outstanding performance last season in H.M.S. Pinafore as Captain Corcoran, and in Pirates of Penzance as General Stanley. This time he will be seen as a drummer boy who turns out to be the missing king.

Noonan frankly admits it was the European war, which kept the Italian opera singers at home, that gave him his chance to show his talents in three of the productions of San Francisco's opera season. He made his first appearance of

Gondoliers Near Home Port, With Song, Comedy

Principals Polish Up Their Roles For Opening January 25th

The costumes are ordered and on their way, the scenery is getting its last touches of paint, the chorus is struggling valiantly to remember stage movements and positions without forgetting words and melodies: the principals are working on little pet bits of comedy business, or struggling manfully to master the Gavotte, and Bernard Callery is dashing around like a four alarm fire, brushing up a patter song, smoothing an awkward exit or entrance, stepping up a lagging tempo, acting and singing four roles at a time.

All is confusion, bustle, noise and movement. In other words, it is a normal week before the production of a Gilbert and Sullivan operetta.

Somehow, by next Thursday evening, when the curtains of the junior college theater open on the first act of The Gondoliers, the Sacramento Light Opera Guild under the direction of Callery will find itself putting on a performance, and the loose ends will have settled into their proper place. And of this the audience can be assured—the zip and spirit and dash that made Pinafore an outstanding success a year ago will be present in this show.

There are a few new singers among the principals. One is Esther Hopkinson, a soprano who takes the leading romantic role of Casilda, the daughter of the Duke and duchess. A graduate of the junior college, where she was a member of the capella choir, she also attended Mills College for the last two years. She directed the chapel choir at Mills for a year, was a member of the concert group, soloist with the Mills choir on Treasure Island last year and also a student of dramatic and fine arts.

Other newcomers will be Jack Berger, a young baritone who shows a good flair for comedy, Elizabeth Demmon, soprano, and Phoebe Howard, contralto, who is better known for her dramatic performances with the junior college players.

Among the other leading singers are Stanley Noonan, of Dick Jurgens band and San Francisco Opera fame; Catherine Rue of Hollywood, who was one of the highlights of the Pinafore and Pirates productions a year ago when she was a Sacramento resident; Stewart Tulley, the dignified junior college instructor and McNeill Club director who unbends with comic pomposity in a Gilbert and Sullivan role; June Hezmalhalch, soprano; Nedric Baugh, baritone; Charles Merrick, tenor, and Mildred Carman, soprano.

Callery, as general director of the production, has the assistance of Beverly Wright as scenery designer, Raymond Rhodes as scenery constructor, Reba McNamar as dance director, and Marie Coppin as accompanist.

Reserved seats are on sale at Ye Music Shoppe, and general admission tickets may be obtained from Sherman Clay and Company, Breuner's, Weinstock-Lubin's and from members of the opera guild. There will be two performances, January 25th and 26th, and the curtain is announced for 8:15 P. M.

the season as a guard in Manon on opening night. This impressed the directors so well that he was entrusted with the singing part of the imperial commissioner in Madame Butterfly, who performs the marriage ceremony for Pinkerton and Butterfly. Alfred Frankenstein, reviewing this performance, noted his debut with the remark that "here is a promising young voice that is worth watching."

Then, because of the absence of certain Italian singers, he was thrust into the role of the Marquis d'Obigny in La Traviata, a role he had never prepared, with one week's notice.

During the opera season he also was being featured in a daily half hour musical program over station KSFO.

What is it like to be in grand opera? Well, Noonan says, it's a great life, hard work, lots of fun, particularly when Lawrence Tibbett is around ribbing the stars and kidding with the choristers; and if you rise high enough it is a fine way to make a living. But even if you don't make a living at it yet, it is wonderful experience.

Light Opera Guild's Gondoliers Falls Short of Standard

By PAUL TANNER

PERHAPS we should blame it all on the wind and rain, or the epidemic of colds, or maybe just a case of "stage nerves," but certainly the Sacramento Light Opera Guild's presentation of "The Gondoliers" last night in J. C. auditorium was little better than a dress rehearsal.

Frankly, the show fell far below the standard this organization has been in the habit of giving, starting at a sluggish pace, and until the entrance of light opera's "Big Four"—Noonan, Tully, Catherine Rue and Esther Hopkinson—getting nowhere fast.

Good Talent in Show

And yet there's plenty of good talent in the troupe, and much merry pranks to be dug out of the piece's action. June Hez-mahach, most decidedly lovely to look upon, works and sings well, although handicapped by illness. Charles Merrick, going too much under wraps until the second act, finally swung loose, and won an encore.

Nedric Baugh, rich vocally, strung along the same lethargic road as Merrick, and waited all too long to liven up, at last going into his deserved encore without benefit of orchestral accompaniment.

Chorus Needs Instructor

The chorus sang lifelessly, and didn't seem to have been told enough about stage business. They are a colorfully garbed group, and are entitled to more explicit instruction as to what to do, and when to do it.

"The Gondoliers" debuted a new figure in Esther Hopkinson, who bids fair to attain amateur stardom. Her voice is magnificent, clean and pure, and she brings intelligence to her acting.

Tulley, Noonan Good

Stewart Tulley and Stanley Noonan, as usual, stole the show. What a team these two are with their perfect poise, gorgeous vocal delivery, clean enunciation and uncanny ability for comedy! They'd make any show good.

The orchestra was efficient, and Director Callery handled them well.

"Gondoliers" will be repeated tonight at 8:30.

Light Opera's Opening Night Proves To Be Disappointing

By RONALD D. SCOFIELD

The Sacramento Light Opera Guild, a seaworthy crew as proved by last year's performances of H. M. S. Pinafore and Pirates of Penzance, collided with Gilbert and Sullivan's The Gondoliers last night and came off second best.

It was the first of two performances of this tuneful, romantic operetta in the junior college auditorium, and it is to be hoped that by tonight the principals will have recalled their forgotten lines, the chorus and minor soloists will have recaptured the zip and vitality of last season, and Director Bernard Callery will carry the show through with more dash and fewer pauses.

Two major faults were apparent; one was the need of more rehearsals to familiarize the singers with their parts in relation to the production as a whole, and the other the need of stage direction, to introduce business, provide movement and dancing, improve enunciation and keep the singers in character while in the background.

In spite of the disappointing showing, however, there were some very enjoyable aspects. Stanley Noonan, for instance, dominated the scene whenever he had the slightest opportunity, not only with his fine baritone voice but also with his skill in comedy and in romantic wooing. His love scene with Esther Hopkinson in the first act was a delightful bit, and their love duet was one of the highlights of the performance. Miss Hopkinson has an unusually pleasing soprano voice which she uses with considerable artistry. Her speaking voice, however, and her stage personality are rather colorless.

Another discovery is Jack Berger, who is a natural born Gilbert and Sullivan character if there ever was one. His portrayal of the Grand Inquisitor was second only to Noonan's drummer boy in polish and dash.

Stewart Tulley had the makings of a good comic character in the role of the Duke of Plaza Toro, but it needed some expert touching up. Catherine Rue as the duchess was far below her usual standard of performance. She forgot part of her patter song and seemed uncertain of some of the action.

Charles Merrick, tenor, and Nedric Baugh, baritone, as the two gondoliers who become jointly a democratic king for a brief moment, scored with their intricate solo in which each sings alternate phrases. If the whole production had been prepared as thoroughly as this bit, it would have been a success. Baugh also revealed a flair for comedy business and pantomime which made his performance outstanding. Merrick's voice showed to good advantage at times, but his enunciation could have been much better.

June Hezmalhalch and Elizabeth Demmon, as the gondoliers' brides, showed flashes of talent in acting although their voices were rather weak.

The settings, designed by Beverly Wright, were pleasing and suitable, and the costuming generally effective. A twelve piece orchestra gave the singers good support. The chorus was less impressive musically than in former productions, and seemed to lack spirit and assurance. Callery permitted too much lag between numbers, with the result that there was no feeling of rhythmic progression from chorus to dialogue to solo.

All of the shortcomings listed above are no more than what might be expected of an amateur group tackling a Gilbert and Sullivan operetta. But the light opera guild has set a standard for itself far above the usual amateur attempt, so despite the myriad difficulties which arise to plague a community theater group, it must expect unfavorable reaction when it falls short of its own possibilities.

Light Opera Guild to Present 'The Gondoliers' at College

WHEN GILBERT AND SULLIVAN drew up their plans for their light opera "The Gondoliers," which Sacramento light opera guild will present tonight and tomorrow night in the junior college auditorium, they decided to put heavy emphasis upon both romantic and "patter-songs."

Although the garden variety of this form of musical entertainment is usually concerned with the sighs and tears of just one pair of lovers, "Gondoliers" succeeds in juggling the affairs of three enamored couples, and offers five pieces of "patter-music," plus love songs and duets galore.

Stewart Tulley as "Duke of Plaza-Toro," attended by Stanley Noonan as "Luiz," are back again with a new bag of drolleries, and Catherine Rue cast as "Duchess of Plaza-Toro" has the feminine lead.

The cast includes Jack Berger, Charles Merrick, Nedric Baugh, Esther Hopkinson, June Hezmahaleh, Elizabeth Demmon, Mildred Carman, Phoebe Howard, Stanley Springer, Hale Welch, Edwin Rowe, Margaret Gleason, Elaine Litzenstein, Reba McNamar has coached the dances and Beverly Wright, supervisor of Sacramento art center, designed the stage sets.

The whole production is under direction of Bernard Callery, who also conducts the orchestra.

lightful bit, and their love duet was one of the highlights of the performance. Miss Hopkinson has an unusually pleasing soprano voice which she uses with considerable artistry. Her speaking voice, however, and her stage personality are rather colorless.

Another discovery is Jack Berger, who is a natural born Gilbert and Sullivan character if there ever was one. His portrayal of the Grand Inquisitor was second only to Neenan's drummer boy in polish and dash.

Stewart Tulley had the makings of a good comic character in the role of the Duke of Plaza Toro, but it needed some expert touching up. Catherine Rue as the duchess was far below her usual standard of performance. She forgot part of her patter song and seemed uncertain of some of the action.

Charles Merrick, tenor, and Nedric Baugh, baritone, as the two gondoliers who become jointly a democratic king for a brief moment, scored with their intricate solo in which each sings alternate phrases. If the whole production had been prepared as thoroughly as this bit, it would have been a success. Baugh also revealed a flair for comedy business and pantomime which made his performance outstanding. Merrick's voice showed to good advantage at times, but his enunciation could have been much better.

June Hezmalhalch and Elizabeth Demmon, as the gondoliers' brides, showed flashes of talent in acting although their voices were rather weak.

The settings, designed by Beverly Wright, were pleasing and suitable, and the costuming generally effective. A twelve piece orchestra gave the singers good support. The chorus was less impressive musically than in former productions, and seemed to lack spirit and assurance. Callery permitted too much lag between numbers, with the result that there was no feeling of rhythmic progression from chorus to dialogue to solo.

All of the shortcomings listed above are no more than what might be expected of an amateur group tackling a Gilbert and Sullivan operetta. But the light opera guild has set a standard for itself far above the usual amateur attempt, so despite the myriad difficulties which arise to plague a community theater group, it must expect unfavorable reaction when it falls short of its own possibilities.

Sing in Bathtub? Certainly, Everybody Does-- You Can Hear Better and Besides It's Fun!

And Now Three Learned Professors of U. C. Present Scientific Proof
That Anyone Can Be a Caruso Under Shower—to Himself, Anyway

By PAUL TANNER

IT TOOK three University of California professors to plunge beneath the turbid waters of psychology and physics and float to the top with the answer to "Why Do Folks Sing in the Bathtub?" Stripping off the five and six cylinder words that conceal the naked truth of their thesis, it appears that "the hard surface of the shower room does not absorb sounds, so they are reflected with greater resonance," also "there is added pep brought by the stimulus of the water striking the body," and "you hear your voice with your inner ear because it is reflected from a surface so near you."

Several prominent Sacramento vocalists were appealed to for enlightenment in this matter.

Stewart Tulley, still imbued with the Gilbert and Sullivanisms of "The Gondoliers," expressed himself in its vernacular:

For the height of vocal pleasure
There is nothing one can treasure
More than singing in the bathtub or the shower.

Whether baritone, bass or tenor,
Ton-flight artist or beginner,
Such a practice makes the manly voice to lower.

And my lady, too, may do it,
Take high C and never rue it,
And the neighbors will remark,
"How she can sing!"

Now for those who would be bolder,
Turn the shower a little colder,
And I'm sure that you can make the welkin ring.

EDWARD PEASE: "To sing in the bathtub is an expression of living. It is quite possible that many a singer created his joy of singing while bathing, and there is no joy in the world compared to the combined joys of singing and bathing."

STANLEY NOONAN: "I have found that women as a rule are not afflicted with the disease of bathroom singing, but I think every man, big or small, bold or timid, when he gets in the bathroom makes believe he is another Caruso or Crosby, as his taste may run. His pianissimos are fortissimos, and his fortissimos are 'out of this world.'"

MADAME WINIFRED LUCIA FISHER: "Participating in music with others should be greater than listening to yourself alone. Therefore, why not sing in the wide open spaces? Join the Civic Singers and sing in Memorial auditorium—there are enough wide open spaces in there to suit anybody."

MAUDE R. TORREY: "I advise all my students to sing in the bathroom to 'hear' their piano has a full evening's work ahead of her, a merited opportunity we are glad to see given her.

Stanley Noonan, baritone, on the same program, schedules von Fielitz's "Elliland" cycle of seven songs in diverse style, as melodious a collection as exists in German music, just the type of vocal expression that Noonan delivers best.

He also is on with two more songs "auf Deutsche" and a Giordano in Italian.

Follows an English composer, Allister; an Italian, Rotoli, and at last what we've been holding our breath over—an American composer, Malotte, and an organist, at that, whose "David and Goliath" occupies the honor position, climaxing the program.

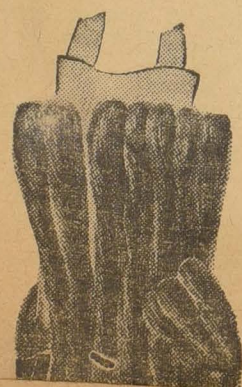

Glad they put on one American composition, anyway.

Guest Soloist

GEORGE STINSON, the singing cop with "the greatest voice since Caruso," will feature the Sacramento Symphony orchestra concert in Memorial auditorium Friday.

Fresh from primaing in the Met's French operas, she sings on tonight's Ford hour, doing the lovely "Depuis le jour" from "Carmen"—a declaration of love.

The Singer's Revenge

Even though they are constantly digging away at the classics to make up 99 per cent of their program material, concert artists have to admit that the "punch" number generally is from the pen of an American.

Stanley Noonan, on last week's Saturday club concert, was going over nicely up to the point where he went into "David and Goliath," a rowdy musicality written by American Composer Malotte that won Baritone Noonan three encores and no end of curtain bowings.

Announcing one of his three encores, "All Day on the Prairie," by Gulon, Noonan grinned down at The Union music critic in row C and announced owlishly:

"This is by an American composer."

My goodness, was our face red!

MAUDE R. TORREY: "I advise all my students to sing in the bathroom to 'hear' their voice better."

WILLIAM TYROLER, chorus master, San Francisco opera: "They all sing in the bathtub, the whole chorus and artists here at the San Francisco opera. Best place in the world for vocalizing. You ought to know, you caught Melchior twice yodeling under the shower, and Norman Cordon, too. Did you ever hear Cordon's 'cussing' vocalizes he does in the bathroom?"

ART STRADER, Sacramento illustrator: "It's all a matter of acoustics. The bath sponge soaks up all the unpleasant sound vibrations. The real reason, of course, is something else. Due to the high moisture in the air, the dust, soot, nicotine and I forget what else in the lungs are washed away, and only the pure musical sound remains to be heard by the bather. No one has ever said the music sounded better to someone else—they only quote the bather's opinion. My calibrations prove that as the voice squeezes out the door the former impurities catch up with it, and it will sound just as 'lousy' as before sponging."

Grace Moore On Air
Despite a flurry of wallpops from the critics, Grace Moore, the blond soprano from Jellicoe, Tenn., continues to be dealt the sweet contracts the country over.

Guest Soloist

GEORGE STINSON, the singing cop with "the greatest voice since Caruso," will feature the Sacramento Symphony orchestra concert in Memorial auditorium Friday.

Fresh from primaing in the Met's French operas, she sings on tonight's Ford hour, doing the lovely "Depuis le jour" from "Loulou"—a declaration of love in the repertoire of four of every five singers.

Franco Ghione, present conductor of the Detroit symphony orchestra, among other numbers, batons the orchestra in Tschai-kowsky's "Italian Caprice" and Gulon's rowdy "Turkey in the Straw," which is a lot of fun for everybody.

Saturday Club Program

Seldom do Vivaldi's "Concertos" appear on programs. Yet John Sebastian Bach admired them enough to make organ arrangements of 16—the only transcriptions the old purist ever essayed—which until the last quarter century few organists played.

Of late there has been a bull movement in Vivaldi's stock, and big-name soloists and orchestras are listing the old violinist's compositions.

It has even brought up that he was red-haired.
Saturday club's Tuesday night program in Junior college auditorium presents Violinists Mary Tomassetti and Mildred Cason Springer in a Vivaldi, arranged for two violins—"The Mill," arranged from Raff's string quartet, and two movements from Moskowski's well known "Suite."

In all these arrangements the accompanist has nearly the same musical responsibility as the violinists. Rosalie Brandt at the piano has a full evening's work ahead of her, a merited opportunity we are glad to see given her.

Stanley Noonan, baritone, on the same program, schedules von Fielitz's "Elliland" cycle of seven songs in diverse style, as melodious a collection as exists in German music, just the type of vocal expression that Noonan delivers best.

He also is on with two more songs "auf Deutsche" and a Giordano in Italian.

Follows an English composer, Alhtsen; an Italian, Rotoli, and at last what we've been holding our breath over—an American composer, Malotte, and an organist, at that, whose "David and Goliath" occupies the honor position, climaxing the program.

Stanley Noonan's Voice Shows He Is Destined for Heights

By PAUL TANNER

SATURDAY club's concert last night in junior college auditorium, presenting Baritone Stanley Noonan, Violinists Mildred Springer and Mary Tomassetti, and Accompanists Dorothy Noonan and Rosalie Brandt, will take its deserved place as one of the most enjoyable musical evenings of this season, a fact most convincingly attested by the enthusiastic efforts of the 800 audience to encore every number on the program.

Stanley Noonan, opening with Von Fielitz's suite, "Eliland," the melodious lamentations the monk in last hopelessly in love with the fair "Irmingard," revealed his mastery of this century-old song cycle. His voice appears to have taken on a smoother, more "velvet" timbre, ideally adapted to the sentimentalities so dear to the latter German school of romanticists.

Best in Dramatic Numbers

However, Noonan is at his best in the more dramatic numbers. His "Nemico della Patria," (Andrea Chenier), wherein Girard soliloquizes whether he shall save his enemy or let him go to his death, was given a stunning performance. Give him a song like Malotte's "David and Goliath," something that he can practically enact, and he is as convincing as any of the maturer baritones on the San Francisco opera stage.

This young man is easily at home in German lieder, particularly in the Schumann, which he does with uncanny beauty. His field is opera, and if ever there was a Sacramento musician destined for musical heights, it is Baritone Stanley Noonan. His sister, Dorothy, was a much above-the-average accompanist.

Slow Movement Good

Violinists Mildred Springer and Mary Tomassetti, with Rosalie Brandt at the piano played the Vivaldi "Concerto" Op. 3, No. 8, a sort of musical sandwich whose meat is in the middle. The slow movement is lovely, the other two almost total losses. The "Allegros" demand much technical skill, which the instrumentalists gave but of all Vivaldi's 100 concertos, this appears to have the least musical merit.

The "Mill," by Raff was a decided step up, both in performance and musical interest. Their best work was in the Moszkowski "Suite," Op. 71, a brilliant bit of playing and writing that scored heartily, and won a well deserved encore.

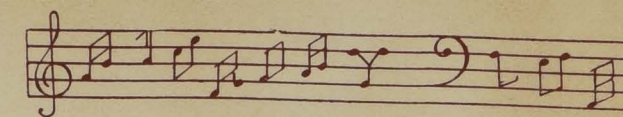

Violinists Pleasing Concert

an excellent example of Eighteenth Century classicism.

There was evidence of careful preparation, the two string players were nicely matched and balanced, the performance as a whole well unified. A work for two violins, however, demands almost perfect intonation and the performers could not always achieve this. Nevertheless it was on the whole a worthy performance of an intricate and interesting composition.

They completed their part of the program with an impressionistic bit, The Mill (Raff-Pochon, Opus 192 No. 2), played with muted instruments, and two movements of Moszkowski's Suite Opus 71.

Celeste Johnson Announces Betrothal at Tea Party

SHINY red and gold valentines bringing the betrothal news of Miss C. Celeste Johnson's engagement to Dr. Robert G. Malone were presented to the 100 guests who called from 2 to 6 p. m. yesterday at the tea given by Miss Sara Louise Heilbron in her home, 2329 Portola way.

The cards were of red with double pierced hearts outlined in gold on the cover with the word "betrothed" down the side. The couple's names in red were on the gold inside.

Miss Johnson is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Johnson of Roseville. She attended Sacramento junior college and was graduated from Mills college.

Lincoln School Teacher

Her affiliations include Sacramento branch, American Association of University Women and the local Mills club.

Miss Johnson is a teacher in the Lincoln school here.

Her fiancé, son of Dr. George E. Malone of Dunsmuir, also attended the local junior college. He was graduated from the College of Physicians and Surgeons in San Francisco and is in private practice here.

Although a definite wedding date has not been set, the couple will be married in early fall.

Valentine Motif

The home was decorated with a profusion of spring blossoms—quince, almond and peach—and China lilies, iris daffodils and Scotch heather.

A tall silver branched candelabra and silver holders held red tapers in the living room, carrying out the valentine motif.

The dining room serving table, covered with a white lace cloth, was centered with a bowl of red camellias, flanked by red tapers in crystal candelabra.

Presided at Tea Table

Receiving the guests were the hostess, Miss Johnson, her mother, Mrs. William Johnson, and her sister-in-law, Mrs. Vernon Johnson.

Mrs. Delbert Annereau and Miss Margaret Suber presided at the tea table.

Serving the tea guests were: Mrs. Tom Valentine; Misses Sue Robinson, Esther Hopkinson, Esther Ford, Charlotte McAfee, Grace Aulwurm, Doris Walker, and Edith Adele Heilbron.

Eddy Shatters Attendance Records at Auditorium

By PAUL TANNER

NELSON EDDY, baritone singing star of Hollywood's "Maytime," "Rose Marie" and "Sweethearts," drew an audience of over 5000 to Memorial auditorium Saturday night—an attendance record that shattered that of the opera and all other solo performers ever to appear in Sacramento. Probably no male figure on today's concert stage can compare with Nelson Eddy in the matter of physique or looks. His six feet two inches are a sculptor's dream, and Hollywood's nicety of mannerism governs his every smile and move. He can win an audience almost by the sheer force of his personality alone. It isn't for nothing that his past few years have been spent under filmdom's merciless Kleigs and its directors' critical eyes.

King of Concert Stage

Just as Hollywood takes heavy toll of youth and freshness, so does it wreak havoc with the voice, even the great Eddy's. Gone are those glorious upper register tones that used to lift his audiences to ecstasy and an oblivion of everything but tonal beauty. Instead of "topping" his tones, as did the Eddy of six years ago, he now comes to them from below—and last night, at least, didn't always quite reach them. His lower voice is still unimpaired, retaining the old marvelous quality, the tones that "made" Nelson Eddy. The silver screen has the rest of it.

Except for this, Nelson Eddy is the uncrowned king of today's concert stage. As an interpreter of song, with a positive genius for drolleries and vocal annuendos, where has he an equal? Whether he sings in English or any of the European tongues, his enunciation is as clean as a hound's teeth. He has a "tenuto"—spinning a tone out for uncounted seconds—that approaches the sensational. His breath control is matchless.

Paxson Masterly

The American composer has no better friend in music than Nelson Eddy, who programmed five native songs, three of which—"To a Skylark," "The Play's the Thing" and "One, Two, Three"—were written especially for him.

Theodore Paxson, piano accompanist-soloist, was masterly in his duo role. Many of the accompaniments were piano solos in themselves, and Paxson not only met all digital demands, but supported the vocal without intruding the instrumental. Heard solo in Schumann's "Romanze" and "Novelette," he was compelled to encore with Copeland's arrangement of a Spanish folk song and Burgher's "Polka." He merited the co-programming which the generous Eddy extended him.

Eddy's complete program and seven encores included:

Choir Concert Is Musical Treat

By RONALD D. SCOFIELD

The Sacramento Junior College A Cappella Choir gave its annual concert in the college auditorium last night and several hundred music lovers who disregarded the weather to attend are enriched by the memory of an evening of beautiful music.

No matter how often this miracle is repeated—the creation of a fine choral instrument from an ever changing group of students in a two year college—one never ceases to marvel at it. One can only be grateful for the inspiring and skilled leadership of Miss Ivine Shields, the director, who makes it possible and for the responsive and enthusiastic young men and women who work and practice to achieve the effects she demands.

If awards are given to those who contribute the most to the welfare of the community, surely a special civic honor should be paid to this choir, for it gives us the joy and beauty of song raised to its highest plane, where heartfelt simplicity and exquisite artistry merge.

It was good to see the auditorium nearly filled for this concert, for it indicates Sacramentans are beginning to appreciate the musical treasure in their midst and it means also the choir was able to raise funds to take it to Los Angeles for a national conference of music educators, for which it will sing on a program to be broadcast nationally.

Opening with its lovely and impressive theme song, Music When Soft Voices Die, by Dickinson, arranged by Ned Baugh of Sacramento, the choir followed its custom of presenting sacred music the first half of the program, Easter and Christmas songs and a choral and chorus from Bach's Jesu, Priceless Treasure.

The devout theme and black robes did not subdue the spirits of the singers, however, for there was a mood of rejoicing in the Bortniansky Easter hymn, Rejoice and Merry Be, and in the French and English carols and sturdy, forthright piety in the Bach numbers.

It is rare a choral group is able to combine such subtlety of expression, vitality of spirit and high standard of musical technique. The intonation is almost flawless; the gradations of tone, balance of voices, meticulous response to the nuances of phrasing, diminuendos, crescendos, attacks and releases, are something to marvel at.

The quality of the choir naturally varies from year to year, because of the changing personnel, but this group mark one of the high spots of recent years. Only in the first soprano section is there a noticeable weakness, and this was apparent in only two or three numbers.

The second half of the program, art songs and folk songs of varying types and moods, was well chosen. Particularly effective were He Is Gone on the Mountain, from Lady of the Lake by Stephen; Hospitality Rune, paraphrased from Hebridian Rune, by Beaumont; a Finnish folk song by James, Tuku, Tuku, Tuu I'm Calling; a French song, Madame Jeanette, by Murray; Grieg's The First Primrose, and the fascinating, repetitive chant, Hos-podi Pomilui, Lord Have Mercy, by Lvovsky.

The audience would not let the choir depart without four encores, among which were the great favorites, Jeannie With the Light Brown Hair (and this writer challenges any choir in the country to sing it more beautifully), Down in the Valley and Katrina's Wedding.

A concert such as last night's calls for no criticism; only for an attempt to voice appreciation. Perhaps this can best be expressed by adding a benediction to the quotation on the printed program:

I go, but thou, my song, shall live.

Overflow Crowd Braves Rain For Superb Choir Concert

By PAUL TANNER

SACRAMENTO'S loyalty to its junior college a capella choir was splendidly attested last night by an audience which, despite a drenching rain, overflowed the main body of J. C. auditorium in attendance upon the choristers' annual concert, directed by Ivine Shields.

The a capella's work is of surprising elegance, both as to tonality and interpretative technique. Their enunciation, clean from beginning to end, reached a seemingly impossible fineness in the prestissimos of "Hospodi Pomilui," which, by the way, Director Shields tempoed at a much brisker gait than heretofore. Yet every syllable was as distinctly audible as though sung by a single individual at half the speed.

Concert goers of today are accustomed to expect round tones, swelling crescendos and melting diminuendos from all musically performing groups, whether vocal or instrumental. But rarely does any group execute these niceties of the art quite in the same degree of precision as do JC's a cappellas. Director Shields controls the choir's tonal balance and volume with the sureness characteristic of performer upon a concert organ, her 30 singers braiding their voices into one gorgeous unison.

Last night's audience will not soon forget the aesthetic beauty of pianissimo in the carol group, particularly the Catalan "Gifts For The Christ Child," nor the smoothness of the florid contrapuntal episodes in Bortniansky's "Glory to God," and Bach's "Jesu, Priceless Treasure."

Stephen's "He Is Gone On the Mountain," Thiman's "Go, Love, Rose," and "Drink to Me Only With Thine Eyes," were exquisitely done, as were "Sweet and Low" and "First Primrose," of Grieg's.

Space and time alone prohibit praise of every member of the a capella's program, each of which possessed its own particular loveliness, sung as only J. C.'s choir can sing them—or as only Ivine Shields can conduct them.

ALEC TEMPLETON
Alec Andrew Templeton was born July 4, 1910, in Cardiff, South Wales, Great Britain. His father and mother, Andrew and Sarah, were farmers. At the age of four, he composed his first piano composition. Earned first money in 1915 playing at a children's concert. Auditioned for British Broadcasting Corporation in 1922 and played for them until 1935. Holds degree from Royal Academy of Music and Royal College of Music, both of London. Most dramatic moment of his career was when he played before the King and Queen of England. Came to America in 1935 with Jack Hylton's band. Liked it so well, he stayed on. Now has taken out naturalization papers. His life's ambition—to bring joy and happiness to others. Alec Templeton, one of the world's leading piano impressionists, broadcasts for Alka-Seltzer on the NBC Red Network every Monday night at 9:30 P. M., EST.

ALEC TEMPLETON
Alec Andrew Templeton was born July 4, 1910, in Cardiff, South Wales, Great Britain. His father and mother, Andrew and Sarah, were farmers. At the age of four, he composed his first piano composition. Earned first money in 1915 playing at a children's concert. Auditioned for British Broadcasting Corporation in 1922 and played for them until 1935. Holds degree from Royal Academy of Music and Royal College of Music, both of London. Most dramatic moment of his career was when he played before the King and Queen of England. Came to America in 1935 with Jack Hilton's band. Liked it so well, he stayed on. Now has taken out naturalization papers. His life's ambition—to bring joy and happiness to others. Alec Templeton, one of the world's leading piano impressionists, broadcasts for Alka-Seltzer on the NBC Red Network every Monday night at 9:30 P. M., EST.

Channing Pollock Will Speak On Topic, Wake Up America, At Meeting Of Woman's Forum

By Clara Guthrie

Amid an elaborately floral decorated setting to typify the serenity of Spring, Channing Pollock, one of America's foremost playwrights, will expostulate on the subject, Wake Up America, at the luncheon meeting of the Woman's Forum Monday noon in the Hotel Senator. Complementing the decorations will be the music of a Spring theme.

Esther Hopkinson and June Peters Annereau will be heard in vocal duets. The Passage Birds Farewell (Hildach) and Flower Duet from Madame Butterfly (Puccini). Maude Redmon Torrey will accompany at the piano.

Mrs. William Boucher, the Woman's Forum president, will preside.

Pollock is the author of the plays, The Fool, Mr. Moneypenny and the Enemy, which are being presented, it is said, in every country having a modern theater.

His books, plays and magazine articles have been translated into a dozen languages. In his spare time, Pollock has published three novels and a book of essays about the theater. He has written poems, movies, musical comedies and about 200 songs, the best known of which is Panny Brie's, My Man.

He has lectured in almost every city in America and has received the honorary degree of Doctor of Letters from the Colgate University.

He is lecturing now and writing two books, mostly on railroad trains, one as an autobiography and the other as a volume of essays to be published by Crowell under the title, The Adventures of a Happy Man.

Mrs. Charles Owens and her committee will have charge of the decorations for Monday. Mrs. D. A. Sherwin, chairman of the hostesses, announces the following will assist her:

Mesdames Ralph Godt, Clyde Gephart, E. A. Trueblood, Hugh Melvin, Otis Babcock, Thomas Arnold, A. E. Adams, Rosa Clauss, John Dale, James Donnelly, T. J. Dillon, O. B. Hayes, Charles Farrell, E. M. Doyle, W. H. Fingado.

Mesdames W. E. Hibbitt, C. G. Large, H. J. McCurry, J. H. Leatherman, Ray Oakley, Frank Ruhstaller, J. G. Standley, Leslie Turple, F. B. Gillett, James R. Wilson, L. C. Lumry, H. G. Krebs, Walter Long, E. E. Kendall and Georgia Bryte.

Leland Ralph In Organ Recital At Baptist Church

The First Baptist church, 24th and L streets, will present G. Leland Ralph, organist, in a recital Sunday afternoon, May 26, at 4 p. m. The event will be open to the public.

He will be assisted by Miss Esther Hopkinson, soprano.

G. Leland Ralph is being presented in Organ Recital in the Willows Baptist Church tonight. He is being assisted by Esther Hopkinson, soprano.

MOTHER'S DAY, MAY 12, 1940

While I am rocking you, my son,
And singing lullabies,
Someone is planning stouter planes
For Death to ride the skies.
While I am dressing you, my son,
In little boyish suits,
Someone is making uniforms
And sturdy soldier boots.

While you are chasing butterflies
Amid the tangled grass,
Someone is testing chemicals
To make a deadlier gas.
And while you eat your simple fare,
Perhaps the war lords sit,
To start again the bugle notes
That only call thee fit.

While I would build a splendid man,
So fine and strong, my son,
Someone in secret tries to make
A farther-reaching gun -
A gun that on some distant day,
When drums of battle roll,
Will leave me with a golden star
And iron in my soul.

USHERS' BOUTONNIERES by courtesy of SENATOR FLORISTS

Rev. Louis P. Jensen of Chicago has been called to an Associate Secretaryship of the American Baptist Foreign Mission Society. He will be attached to the Home Department and will be in charge of the Society's office in Los Angeles. In this assignment, he will be the Society's representative in all the Far Western and Pacific Coast states.

The following are attending the Women's House Party at Mt. Hermon: Mesdames Azevedo, Jenkins, Jones, McNeill, Seidel, Sherwin, Weisker, White and Willett.

You are cordially invited to the Vesper Organ Recital given this afternoon at 4:00 o'clock by G. Leland Ralph in this church. He will be assisted by Miss Esther Hopkinson, soprano.

CONGRATULATIONS: Harold and Howard Stocking and Kenney Hunter who are graduating from the University of California. Betty Edwards, one of our W.W.G. girls, was recently awarded the first prize ($10) for an essay on "Peace" in Sacramento High School by the Soroptomist Club. Dorothy Jean Woodard has been chosen as valedictorian for the Sacramento High School girls graduating next month. We are proud of our young people.

Mrs. Josie Button, one of our shut-ins, is now located at 2916 Franklin Blvd (N 2236) and will be glad to see her friends. Mrs. Lizzie Dodge is confined in her daughter's home, 2153 Perkins Way, because of an injury from a recent fall.

SYMPATHY to Mrs. R. E. Cusick and family in the death of her husband last week.

SAVE JUNE 4th for the MEN'S CLUB DINNER.

The American Red Cross is making an appeal to all civic patriotic and religious groups for the raising of funds for victims of the conflict in Europe. Headquarters are at 1014 8th St. or official contribution tables established throughout the city.

FOUND a Bible with name of M. Amick on frontice piece. Claim same in the church office.

MESSAGE from Mr. Bailey: Dear friends: From this great inspirational gathering of Baptists convening 3000 miles from you, I send greetings and assure you my heart is following the progress of this glorious choral feast and the sacred dedication of another art glass memorial window. Though sundered far by faith we meet around one common mercy seat. God bless you, each one. Your pastor, (signed) R. L. Bailey

This third clerestory north, the choice memorial to the splendid lives of Dr. and Mrs. George Robertson Bell, given by their daughter, Mrs. William A. Smith, and her family, moves into the great tradition of the major prophets, Jeremiah, the Prophet of Doom, and Isaiah, the Prophet of Redemption.

These two tremendous figures are fittingly joined to remind us of the obligations and rewards of loyalty to the supreme sovereignty of God.

P R O E M

The Oresteia of Aeschylus is a trilogy of plays written on the great theme of sin and retribution. In the first play, Agamemnon, the story is told of how Agamemnon, lord of Argos and leader of the Greek armies, is murdered on his victorious return from the Trojan war by his wife Clytemnestra and her lover Aegisthus. Orestes, young son of Agamemnon and Clytemnestra and heir to the throne, is sent into exile, and Electra, his sister, reduced almost to the position of slave in her father's house.

Choëphoroe or the Libation-Bearers, middle play of the trilogy, shows the return from exile of Orestes, now grown to manhood, his reunion with his sister, his vengeance upon the guilty pair and the beginning of his mad flight from his mother's dying curse.

In the third play of the Oresteia, Eumenides, Orestes, after long wandering, pursued by his mother's Furies, is purged of his guilt, and the long story of sin and expiation comes to its peaceful close.

The Oresteia was produced in 458 B.C. and received first prize.

LITANY OF THANKSGIVING Class of 1940

God of all peoples and of all ages,
 For the progressive revelation of the nature of thy Being,
 up through the long aeons of historical development, culminating in the recognition of thy Truth by self-conscious life

We thank Thee, O Lord.

For the great adventure of life: life with its untold possibilities; with its stimulating challenges; with its mighty opportunities

We thank Thee, O Lord.

For the gift of physical life: life strong and overflowing in these bodies, which may be used as instruments in thy service

We thank Thee, O Lord.

For the gift of mental life with its power of critical appreciation, whereby relationships of parts within the Whole may be discerned and the building of thy Kingdom farther advanced within the world of space and time

We thank Thee, O Lord.

For the gift of spiritual life: life triumphant; and for the glory of the immediate knowledge of thine own indwelling presence, through which our human eyes may see, however dimly, the world of the Ideal

We thank Thee O Lord.

Our Father, we thank Thee for all new beginnings. We are grateful for the past four years, and for the enrichment in physical, mental, and spiritual life which they have brought; but we thank Thee even more for the opportunities which lie ahead for service to Thee through service to our fellows, and for communion with Thee, in whom we live and move and have our being. Through dynamic faith in Thee, as the living God of Truth, may the smoky flames of our knowledge become clearly burning fires of wisdom.
 Amen.

PROCESSIONAL HYMN

Forward through the ages, In unbroken line, Move the faithful spirits At the call divine. Gifts in differing measure, Hearts of one accord, Manifold the service One the sure reward.	Prophets have proclaimed it, Martyrs testified, Poets sung its glory, Heroes for it died.
[CHORUS]	[CHORUS: Forward, etc.]
Forward through the ages, In unbroken line, Move the faithful spirits At the call divine.	Not alone we conquer, Not alone we fall In each loss or triumph Lose or triumph all.
Wider grows the kingdom, Reign of love and light; For it we must labor, Till our faith is sight.	Bound by God's far purpose In one living whole, Move we on together To the shining goal!
	[CHORUS: Forward, etc.]

Cellist, Dancer, Singers,
String Ensemble, Pianists
Are On Year's Program

The Saturday Club, continuing the policy inaugurated last year of sponsoring Sacramento artists, has completed plans for the 1940-41 series of concerts, according to the president, Mrs. Hugh Melvin.

The opening program on Tuesday, October 8th, will present two artists, Edythe Reily Rowe, cellist, who has been a resident of Sacramento for two years, coming here from Baltimore where she was a member of the Baltimore Symphony Orchestra; and Nedrick Baugh, well known Sacramento baritone.

On Tuesday, December 3rd, Claire Gleason, dancer, and Esther Anderson, soprano, will be featured. The concert on Tuesday, February 18th, will include the von Hagen string ensemble, and Denise Van Den Burg Coppin, pianist, a graduate of the Royal Conservatory at The Hague, The Netherlands. She later studied under internationally famous teachers, among them Josu Turbi, and has appeared in joint recitals in eastern cities with her brother, Willem Van Den Burg, cellist, and the conductor of the Sacramento Symphony Orchestra. The program, on Tuesday April 15th, will feature Esther Hopkinson, soprano, and Elizabeth Brand, pianist. Miss Hopkinson received her early education in Sacramento under Maude Redmond, and later studied voice at the College under the direction of Mr. Marchant. Miss Brand, a pupil of May Hopkinson, has made several public appearances since her debut two years ago in a recital given at the Little Theater in the Memorial Auditorium. She has done some composing, having written, among other compositions, the music for the extravaganza, The Black Pirate's Cave, given last Spring under the auspices of the Charity League.

The Junior Saturday Club, composed of young Sacramento musicians under the direction of Marie Stebbins, is planning an enterprising series of programs, besides those given at their regular meetings.

Sacramento Artists To Be Heard In Home City

Here are four of the resident artists who have been engaged by the Saturday Club for recitals in Sacramento during the coming season. Upper left is

Elizabeth Brand, concert pianist; upper right, Edythe Reily

Rowe, cello soloist and a member of the Chamber Music Society trio; center, Esther Hopkinson, soprano, and Nedric Baugh, baritone.

Club Will Offer Singers, Dancer, Pianist, Cellist

Edythe Reily Rowe And Nedric Baugh Will Open Series

The Saturday Club today announced the names of some of the local artists who will be presented in concerts during the coming season, including several singers, a pianist, a cellist and a dancer.

Opening the club's season, on October 8th, will be Edythe Reily Rowe, cellist, and Nedric Baugh, baritone—both accompanied by Rosalie Brandt.

Mrs. Rowe, a resident of Sacramento for the past two years, is a member of the trio of the Chamber Music Society, and formerly an alternate first cellist of the Sacramento Symphony Orchestra.

Baugh, a Sacramento singer who received his training here and in Salt Lake City, is a former featured soloist of the Sacramento Junior College A Cappella Choir, one of the principals of the Light Opera Guild last season, and soloist for the First Church of Christ, Scientist.

The December 3rd concert will present Claire Gleason, dancer, pupil of Estelle Reed, a former student of Michio Ito and a member of the San Francisco Opera Ballet Company, sharing the program with Esther Anderson, soprano soloist of the Sacramento Civic Singers, the Shrine Chanters and the State Fair Singers. Melba Weida will be the accompanist for this program.

One of the later programs will include Elizabeth Brand, concert pianist and composer, and Esther Hopkinson, soprano, soloist with the Civic Singers and principal of the Light Opera Guild.

Bridal Shower and Luncheon To Honor Celeste Johnson

MRS. DELBERT ANNAREAU and Miss Esther Hopkinson will be hostesses today at a bridal shower and luncheon teting Miss Celeste Johnson, whose marriage to Dr. Robert Malone will take place at 8 p. m. September 7 in First Baptist church.

Guests have been invited for 1 p. m. in the home of Miss Hopkinson, who is to be one of the bridesmaids.

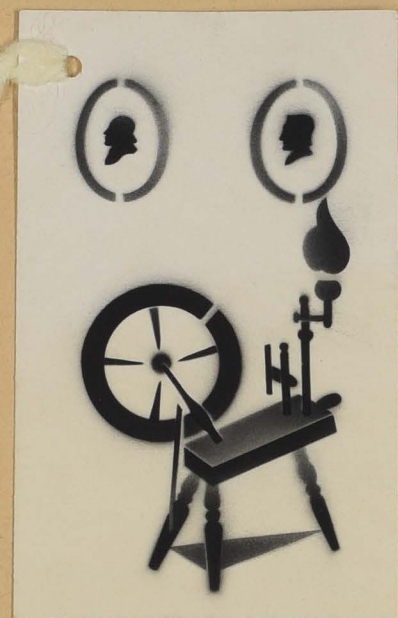

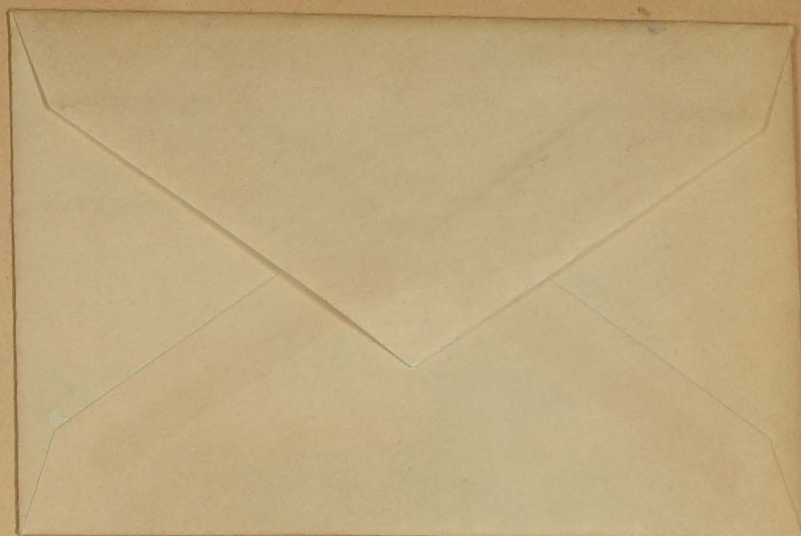

Table centerpiece will be a large, old-fashioned doll, surrounded by purple asters, and toward the ends of the table will be smaller dolls, with the same flower arrangements. Deep orchid candles will be used.

Tallies and placecards will repeat the colonial theme. Bridge will be played.

Invited are Mrs. Clifton Hamilton, who is to be matron of honor, Mrs. William Johnson of Roseville, the bride-elect's mother, Miss Betsy Rulison, who will be honor maid; Misses Jean and Lillian Gaillard of Oakland, Miss Alice Woodard, Misses Sarah Louise Heilbron and Blanche Hooke of Roseville, the other bridesmaids, and Miss Maty Anda Smith of Folsom.

The Misses Gaillard are Mills college students, and although their real home is in Africa, are visiting in Oakland. They have been guests here several times of Miss Rulison.

Miss Johnson is planning to entertain her attendant day evening.

Celeste Johnson Is Given Party

Miss Celeste Johnson, who will marry Dr. Robert G. Malone on September 7th, was honored last night by Miss Betsy Rulison in her home at 1351 Thirteenth Avenue. The guests were girls who attended Mills College at the same time as the honored guest.

Bridge was played during the evening and gifts of linen were presented to Miss Johnson. An arrangement of asters and fern centered the refreshment table and small silver baskets marked each place.

Those present were: Mesdames George Foulks and Delbert Annareau; Misses Muriel Stoner, Margaret Suber and Esther Hopkinson.

Johnson, Malone Wedding Is Set For September 7th

By Kaye Kneeland

Invitations in the mail are announcing that September 7th has been chosen by Miss Celeste Johnson and Dr. Robert Malone as their wedding date. Their friends are invited to be present at the First Baptist Church at 8 P. M. to witness the ceremony which Rev. Raymond L. Bailey will perform.

Mrs. Clifton Hamilton, a cousin of the bride, has been asked to be the matron of honor and the maid of honor will be Miss Betsy Rulison. The bridesmaids chosen are Misses Esther Hopkinson, Sarah Louise Heilbron and Blanche Hooke of Roseville, Placer County.

Dr. Malone has asked his brother, Jack, to attend him as best man and the duties of the head usher have been turned over to the bride's brother, Clifton Johnson, while the other ushers will be Horace Porter and Ben Murray of Dunsmuir, Siskiyou County, and George Weamer of Richmond.

The bride will be given in marriage by her father, William H. Johnson and Mrs. Delbert Annareau will be the soloist.

The bride is the daughter of the William Johnsons of Roseville, Placer County, and is a graduate of the Sacramento Junior College and Mills. She was a teacher in the Lincoln school, here, and is affiliated with the Sacramento Branch of the American Association of University Women and the local Mills club.

Dr. Malone is the son of Dr. George E. Malone of Dunsmuir, Siskiyou County, and is a graduate of the local junior college and the College of Physicians and Surgeons in San Francisco. He is engaged in private practice.

The engagement was first announced in the earlier part of the year at a tea where Miss Heilbron was the hostess.

Dr. Malone

Last night, immediately after Miss Delbert Annereau sang "At Dawning" and "The Lord's Prayer," Miss Celeste Johnson marched down the aisle of First Baptist church to the altar where Dr. Robert Malone was waiting to claim her as his bride. She was escorted by her father, William H. Johnson of Roseville. At the organ was Miss Margaret Suber.

Rev. Raymond Lull Bailey officiated at the altar decorated with white gladioli and silver king in white vases placed on white pillars, candelabra and a banking of palms.

Coronet of Pearls

The modish wedding gown was of white brocade damask, designed with a sweetheart neckline, full train and long sleeves. The full length lace-edged veil was held by a scalloped coronet of pearls with a rhinestone cross in the center.

FASHION INTERMISSION

"Who's Dancing Tonight"

10:30 to 10:45 P. M.

Miss Evangeline Baker, Eastern's fashion commentator, will visit among the tables and ask the correct answer to one of the following questions. Eastern will present a pair of $1.25 Kayser chifton hose free if the correct answer is given.

- Is a vendetta: a short dagger, a feud, or a push-cart?
- Can a rabbit run faster uphill or downhill?
- If a guest in your home commits a theft, is he a burglar?
- The onion is a member of what family?
- Why does thunder follow lightning?
- How full should your fountain pen be when you start on an airplane trip?

CARRY ME BACK TO OLD VIRGINNY

Carry me back to old Virginny,
There's where the cotton and the corn
and tatoes grow,
There's where the birds warble sweet
in the spring-time,
There's where the old darkey's heart
am longed to go.
There's where I labored so hard for old Massa,
Day after day in the field of yellow corn.
No place on earth do I love more
sincerely,
Than old Virginny, the state where I was born.

Carry me back to old Virginny,
There's where the cotton and the corn

There's where the birds warble sweet

There's where this old darkey's heart

THE COMPANY AS YOU SEE THEM

J. P. CAHN, after a season in New York, came home with a burning desire to start a theatre of his own, and this desire brought about the birth of Roadrunner Productions. Officially our director, Jeep doubles occasionally as actor and constantly as technician. After Stanford he played summer stock in Marquette and then moved on to New York, where he graced various radio and television broadcasts. In his leisure time he has authored numerous songs and at least two musical comedies; of this habit the Roadrunners heartily approve, but his other hobby—pistol practice—gives them all a few uneasy moments.

GENE CALLNON, known principally for scenic design and general technical direction, although on occasion he serves as actor, ventured backstage for the first time at Sacramento Junior College—and was immediately appointed stage manager of the production. At Sacramento and later at Stanford he figured variously as stagehand, carpenter, sculptor, electrician, stage manager and technical director, yet still managed to rise at five every morning to pilot the campus bakery truck. On leaving school he has done everything from operating a snow plow to assisting technically on a San Francisco production of The Bluebird.

TONY OEFARATTI'S principal dramatic experience has been in the realm of campus musical comedy. Though he wants to play serious roles, audiences desire him as a comedian, so a comedian he remains. "It's the same way with Chaplin," mutters Tony. One of the three undergraduates in the group, he came all the way from Chicago to prepare for Stanford Law School, but now it seems doubtful if The Bar will triumph over The Boards. If he returns to school in the fall he will follow Roadrunners Cahn, Clark and Wood as president of Stanford's honorary dramatic society.

FRED CLARK'S original aim was psychiatry, which accounts for his university degree in psychology, and two summers' work as attendant in a mental hospital. Apparently this experience had a lasting effect, for his last year at Stanford found him embarked on a career in the theatre. After a two year scholarship at the American Academy of Dramatic Art, he appeared in the Broadway productions of Schoolhouse On The Lot, Ringside Seat, See My Lawyer and What A Life, with a four month tour in the last named. In between he has appeared in radio and stock, and read scripts for MGM. A season of summer stock at Brattleboro, Vermont, was to be repeated until he jumped at the chance to become a Roadrunner.

JACK DAWSON, poised hesitantly between dramatics and business, apparently settled on the latter as a career. But, after a year with General Motors, he returned to the stage to become a co-founder of Roadrunner Productions. The group's business man, Jack also finds himself one of its busiest actors—thereby combining both his chosen fields. Interspersing campus dramatic work with appearances in Palo Alto and Alameda Community Theatres, he distinguished himself at Stanford as instructor in makeup. Born in Detroit, he now stems from Los Altos, and teams with Clark as company photographer.

On leaving school he has done everything from operating a snow plow to assisting technically on a San Francisco production of The Bluebird.

TONY CEFARATTE'S principal dramatic experience has been in the realm of campus musical comedy. Though he wants to play serious roles, audiences desire him as a comedian, so a comedian he remains. "It's the same way with Chaplin," mutters Tony. One of the three undergraduates in the group, he came all the way from Chicago to prepare for Stanford Law School, but now it seems doubtful if The Bar will triumph over The Boards. If he returns to school in the fall he will follow Roadrunners Cahn, Clark and Wood as president of Stanford's honorary dramatic society.

FRED CLARK'S original aim was psychiatry, which accounts for his university degree in psychology, and two summers' work as attendant in a mental hospital. Apparently this experience had a lasting effect, for his last year at Stanford found him embarked on a career in the theatre. After a two year scholarship at the American Academy of Dramatic Art, he appeared in the Broadway productions of Schoolhouse On The Lot, Ringside Seat, See My Lawyer and What A Life, with a four month tour in the last named. In between he has appeared in radio and stock, and read scripts for MGM. A season of summer stock at Brattleboro, Vermont, was to be repeated until he jumped at the chance to become a Roadrunner.

JACK DAWSON, poised hesitantly between dramatics and business, apparently settled on the latter as a career. But, after a year with General Motors, he returned to the stage to become a co-founder of Roadrunner Productions. The group's business man, Jack also finds himself one of its busier actors—thereby combining both his chosen fields. Interspersing campus dramatic work with appearances in Palo Alto and Alameda Community Theatres, he distinguished himself at Stanford as instructor in makeup. Born in Detroit, he nows stems from Los Altos, and teams with Clark as company photographer.

PHYLLIS HANSON, the lone non-Stanfordite of the Roadrunners, further individualizes herself by being at 18 the baby of the organization. Although born in Salem, Oregon, most of her life has been spent in Modesto, California. After receiving a dramatic scholarship to Modesto Junior College she competed in the Pasadena Playhouse Tournament, where she won individual honors for the best girl's performance, and attracted the attention of Warner Brothers' casting director. Desiring however to finish college before assaying a professional career, she returned to Modesto, but very shortly found herself a Roadrunner.

HARRY MUHEIM first took dramatics because he couldn't take calculus that period. After five years he's still not convinced it was a smart move. A slight brush with the professional theatre found him in Walter Huston's The Miles of Heaven, which opened and closed in San Francisco. On entering Stanford he soon found himself shunted away from drama and into musical comedy, but unlike Tony he doesn't seem to mind at all. A familiar campus gag-man, he's written several shows and numerous songs for Stanford consumption. Of his gags he says, "They're corny, but I like them." And we're unable to dispute either point.

MARGARET PAULSON, another Oregonian (from Coquille, if we must be exact), managed to sandwich a year at her state university between her terms at Stanford. After graduation she emulated Clark in attending the American Academy of Dramatic Art, but first joined Jeep for a summer of Marquette stock. While in Michigan they participated in a series of radio broadcasts and interviews. Margie again concurred with Fred in turning down summer stock work in the east in order to join Roadrunner Productions.

VIRGINIA SHARPE, vacillating between careers in journalism, art or the theatre, solved her problem by becoming a school teacher. For the past year she has taught and directed in Newman, California; among her productions were What A Life and a prize-winning radio play. Besides acting she has designed sets and costumes, and during rehearsals she busies herself sketching her fellow Roadrunners. Sharpy transferred to Stanford from UCLA, and worked her way through both schools, principally by reading aloud to elderly invalids. Since this demanded a five-time perusal of Gone With The Wind, she sometimes wonders if a higher education was worth the price.

GEORGE WOOD, history graduate and expert linguist, found that two years study in France set the stage for several seasons' appearances with Andre Ferrier's French Theatre in San Francisco, where he played everything from stark tragedy to musical farce. While at Stanford George appeared in the American premiere of Squaring The Circle, subsequently produced at Pasadena and then with great success on Broadway. Possibly his proudest accomplishment is the fact that he's ten minutes older than his sister Margaret.

MARGARET WOOD, aside from being fifty percent of all the twins in Roadrunner Productions, holds the company record for college attendance: she started at Scripps, transferred to Stanford, spent a summer session at Mills, and did graduate work at California. Although for a time her interests turned away from active theatre work to recreational direction and child psychology, Peggy still found time to follow her brother in working under Andre Ferrier. For various organizations she has produced such widely divergent shows as The Drunkard and Snow White And The Seven Dwarfs.

THE BIRTH OF A NOTION

ROADRUNNER PRODUCTIONS can best be described as a group of Stanford University graduates and students united by previous association and a common desire to make their individual and collective marks in the theatrical profession. Of course the whole project was obviously impossible from the start, but none of the group seemed to realize that. Just how and when the original idea giving birth to the Roadrunners originated seems a bit hazy in the minds of the various company members. But the first practical application found J. P. CAHN and GENE CALLNON in a Stockton street at three in the morning, pajama clad and industriously measuring off truck and trailer dimensions. J. P., home from New York for Christmas, had come to the conclusion that the only way to do what he wanted to do in the theatre, and do it fast, was to do it himself. Gene agreed—as do we all,—and the next morning they descended on JACK DAWSON, busily engaged peddling automobiles in Oakland. Their introductory salutation, "Jack, we've got a red hot idea," found receptive ears, and production plans plunged on apace. In short order the other members of the company, selected on a combined basis of congeniality, ability, and non-aversion to a modicum of hard work, had been contacted, and one by one they joined the fold. FRED CLARK dropped a summer stock job in Vermont and drove three thousand miles to make it, but make it he did, even though momentarily nonplussed by a collapsing auto in the midst of that territory Southern California refuses to term "desert." A phone call to GEORGE WOOD'S Oakland home, in an effort to locate his New York address, was answered by George in person, returned that afternoon from the East—so that simplified matters. And George's sister MARGARET was very rapidly convinced that she'd rather be a Roadrunner than a recreational director. VIRGINIA SHARPE decided that a road tour would act as a worthy complement to her present career of teaching school; MARGARET PAULSON felt similarly about attending dramatic school in New York, so they were quick converts. PHYLLIS HANSON hopped on the trailer as we rolled through Modesto, and to make the Stanford roster complete and official, HARRY MUHEIM and TONY CEFARATTI climbed aboard the bandwagon as soon as the spring term ended. That seems to sum up the personnel. We built our trailer, rebuilt our truck, gathered our equipment, scouted our territory, girded our loins, started our eight ball rolling, and there we were. There we were, and here we are.

CRITICAL COMMENTS

Boker's "Francesca da Rimini," first produced in 1855 in an acting version prepared by E. L. Davenport, has become an accepted masterpiece of the American drama. Particularly successful productions were given in 1882 with Otis Skinner as Paolo and in 1901 with the same actor as Lanciotto. The text used by the Sacramento Junior College is based upon the authentic version supplied by Dr. A. H. Quinn in his anthology, Representative American Plays, published by the D. Appleton-Century Co.

Admirably conceived from the theatrical standpoint, the play owes a huge debt to Shakespearean influence in both form and sentiment.

The story of the weak and unhappy lovers, Paolo and Francesca, has always been popular with both writers and public. There are twentieth-century plays on the subject by Stephen Phillips and Gabriele d'Annunzio. On the operatic stage are works by Thomas, Mancinelli, and, most important of all, Riccardo Zandonai.

PROGRAM NOTES

The scenery has been designed by Mr. Raymond H. Rhodes and constructed by the class in stagecraft with especial attention to such architectural details as Guelph battlements for the Rimini scenes and Ghibelline for the Ravenna sets. Special electrical effects have been designed and executed by the class in stage lighting.

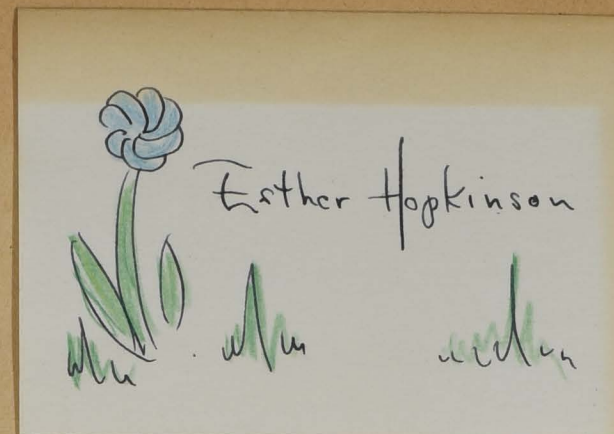

NOTICE TO PATRONS

Smoking in the building is forbidden at college functions.

Guests are invited to meet their actor friends in the Little Theatre after the performance.

In accordance with general theatrical practice, the use of cameras in the auditorium is not permitted.

Our next play, "High Tor," will be presented on December 13-14 under the direction of Miss Frances Frater.

SYMPATHY to Mary Jane Doty upon the death of her father last week.

The entire church mourns the passing of a loyal member and a stalwart witness for Jesus Christ, James R. Shaw, the head of a large and greatly beloved family. He went into his Father's presence last Friday. Services will be at the Nauman Chapel at 10:30 tomorrow.

As our young people are released for Thanksgiving Holidays it reminds us of the JUNIOR COLLEGE PLACEMENT BUREAU. Do you need a college student (boy or girl) to work for board and room? Any part time employment need can be readily filled. Phone Mrs. Frazer, Cap. 3170.

Since January 1st, 13 persons have been killed in traffic accidents on the streets of Sacramento. Of these, 11 were pedestrians and the great majority of them were over the age of 50 years. Rules to help pedestrians avoid accidents: Stop, look, and listen; never jay-walk; obey the traffic signals; if you become confused when crossing the street, stand still; help the motorist at night by wearing something white.

From the Office of THE CHURCH COUNCIL November 15 1940

MEETING OF THE CHURCH COUNCIL - Tuesday November 19
12:15 Luncheon
YMCA Auditorium

Mr. Henry George Andrews, Executive Secretary Community Welfare Council, will speak on "Christianity In Action". Mr. Andrews, just a few months in Sacramento, has already become well known. He came here from Glendale, California, where during his four years of Community Chest leadership the annual amount raised was almost doubled. As a business man his executive work in Pacific Coast Department Stores, from Seattle to Los Angeles, covers a period of 25 years.

Miss Esther Hopkinson of the First Baptist Church, former soprano soloist of that church, and now its Junior Choir Director, and also the director of the choir of the Greek Orthodox Church, will be the musical feature. A Mills College alumna, and known in musical circles of the Bay area, she is a vocal teacher, and herself a delightful singer.

Since this meeting is sponsored by the Department of Social Relations and Action of the Church Council, Mr. C. Mansel Keene, of the Sacramento Junior College, will share the presiding duties with Major Edwards.

Make your reservation at 35 cents through your own church office, or by calling Capital 10210 W. Main 416, or Main 6009 J. Persons without reservations cannot be guaranteed luncheon service. In making reservation, either obtain ticket from your church office, or make sure your name is known.

The Art Students' League of the Sacramento Junior College, founded in 1925 by John B. Matthew, is an organization for the advancing of art standards among its members and in the college. Each year the League awards a competitive exhibit of the works of its members and the Art Department. Scholarships and prizes are awarded those found worthy. These prizes and scholarships are given according to the regulations of the constitution of the League, and the winners must qualify in character, skill, scholarship, and evident need. The work of this organization is supported by funds received from the sale of tickets to the Art Ball. We take this opportunity to thank our patrons and those who have so generously given of their time for the success of the fifteenth annual Art Ball.

AN ARABIAN NIGHT

Do you remember the fascinating tales of the Arabian nights? The Sultan, Schah-riar, broken-hearted and enraged when he learns of the infidelity of his beloved sultana, swore to take vengeance on all women. He planned to take a new wife each night—each to be executed the following morning. In a courageous attempt to stop this maniacal slaughter of the flower of the Tartary Kingdom, brave and lovely Scheherazade, daughter of the Grand Vizier, volunteered to become one of the brides. Although her father, her sister, and all her relatives and friends were horrified with the idea that she would become one of the Sultan's victims, she was determined to carry out her plans. Her design was to tell a story each evening to the Sultan—a story so thrilling and so exciting that the distraught ruler would allow her to live to tell another tale.

We will now visit the city of Samarkand, enter the picturesque market-place at dusk, see the Sultan and his harem.... and judge for ourselves the success of the entertainment provided by Scheherazade....

SCENE: Market-place in early evening. A pottery shop. Another shop displaying lamps. Adjoining the market may be seen the harem of the Sultan Schah-riar. The Sultan is seated among his dancing girls.

The Sultan, Schah-riar, demands entertainment, and orders the dancing girls to perform for him. As their dance ends, the Sultan sees a young man (Aladdin) enter the market-place. The lad goes from shop to shop, admiring the displayed wares. At the lamp shop, Aladdin sees an old and queerly shopped lamp. He carries it to the street to examine it in better light. The lamp is so dusty that the boy rubs it with his sleeve. He jumps back in fear and amazement when a green vapor streams from the old lamp. The skies are filled with sounds of thunder and unearthly noises—and from the green vapor the Genie writhes out and towers over the cowering Aladdin. The Genie, awesome, frightful, bestial figure, expresses his glee over his escape in a dance, which ends with bows and protestations of obedience to Aladdin, his new master.

Ali-Baba and some of his famous forty thieves, strolling through the market in search of loot, see enough of the performance to recognize the miraculous powers and the endless possibilities of the Wonderful Lamp. In order to distract Aladdin, Ali-Baba and his followers dance. Overcome by all the excitement, Aladdin becomes drowsy and falls asleep, which gives the watchful Ali-Baba the chance he is awaiting, and he steals the lamp.

Ali-Baba rubs the lamp and demands that the Genie produce a snake dancer, which is no sooner asked than granted, and a Cobra-girl emerges from her basket to perform. The robber group is held spellbound by the sinuous undulations of the dancer. Luckily, Aladdin awakens, discovers his great loss, and successfully retrieves his Wonderful Lamp. The thieves rush for cover and find hiding places in the great jars near the pottery shop. An Arab girl who has become enamored of Aladdin, sees the culprits in their hiding places, and in a Dance of Death pours boiling oil into the jars, thus disposing of the villains.

An auctioneer with a group of slave girls enters the market and orders them to dance for the interested prospective customers. A caravan enters the market-place, preceded by slave boys bearing baskets of fruit and other wares. A camel of comic inclination follows in the procession. Then several beautiful girls enter and attempt to charm Aladdin, who has wished for a bride. They fail to please him, and he summons the Genie once more, demands that his order be produced. The Genie returns with a beautiful and gracious maiden. Aladdin is enchanted with her, as well he might be—for this is none other than the Sultana herself—QUEEN OF THE ART BALL!

Foreword

The fourth annual presentation of this oratorio is not offered as an exhibition nor an entertainment but as a sincere and dignified effort in community music. The majority of the singers are organized as the Sacramento Civic Singers, the others join each year just for this occasion.

We lift our voices together at Christmas time and have a joyous part in singing "Glory to God in the Highest, Peace on Earth, Goodwill to Men," knowing that music's real mission is to stir the human soul to a finer and deeper spiritual life.

"All roads must lead to Bethlehem;
All men at last must follow them,
And be you great or be you small
May God, Himself bless you all
Upon the roads to Bethlehem."

The Sacramento Civic Singers gratefully acknowledge the sponsorship of The Woman's Council, The Scottish Rite Bodies, The Church Council, The Ministerial Association and The Recreation Department of the City Government.

J. B. MALONEY WINIFRED LUCIA FISHER
Superintendent of Recreation. Director.

The Sacramento Civic Singers' schedule:

The action of the play covers a single night on High Tor, a bluff a thousand feet above the Hudson River.

There will be an intermission of seven minutes between Acts I and II; of five minutes between Acts II and III. The curtain will close only momentarily for scene divisions.

THE PLAY

For the third time the college players are essaying a verse drama by Maxwell Anderson—"Mary of Scotland" in 1937, "Elizabeth the Queen" in 1939, and now "High Tor." This mixture of farcial comedy, fantasy, and romance—of racy colloquial speech and lovely verse—rather resists classification. Perhaps Stephen Vincent Benet came closest in calling it "A Midsummer Night's Dream on the Palisades." The play was a high point of the 1937 Broadway season. In fact, it was awarded the Critics' Circle prize as the best of the year.

There is really a great cliff above the Hudson River known as High Tor, owned by a certain Elmer Van Orden, descendant of Dutch patroons. To the edge of his land a traprock company has eaten, but he refuses the offered price of eighty-five thousand dollars for his mountain. Mr. Van Orden was asked, when he had seen the play, whether he would ever sell the Tor. His reply was, "Not now—nor after I die!" There is for him no Indian speaking Maxwell Anderson's haunting verse:

"Let them come in despoiling,
For a time is but a time
And these will not endure; this little hill,
Let them have the little hill, and find your peace
Beyond, for there's no hill worth a man's peace
While he may live and find it."

ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

The steam shovel and the mountain setting are the design of Mr. Raymond H. Rhodes, with construction by his class in Stagecraft, and special effects by his class in Stage Lighting.

Mr. Stewart Tulley composed the melody of the sailors' chantey.

Mr. Schmidt of the Police School helped with guns and uniforms.

The antique flintlock pistols are loaned by Mr. Herbert Copeland.

Members of the Rally Committee were of assistance in publicity.

Ushers are representatives of the Boosters, Block S, and Rally organizations.

NOTICE TO PATRONS

Smoking in the building is forbidden at college functions.

Guests are invited to meet their actor friends in the Little Theatre after the performance.

In accordance with theatre practice, the use of cameras at performances is not permitted.

* Dates for productions during the spring season are March 13-14 and May 8-9.

Joy to the World

Joy to the world! the Lord is come;
Let earth receive her King;
Let every heart prepare Him room,
And Heav'n and nature sing,
And Heav'n and nature sing,
And Heav'n, and Heav'n and nature sing.

Joy to the earth! the Saviour reigns;
Let men their songs employ;
While fields and floods, rocks, hills and plains
Repeat the sounding joy,
Repeat the sounding joy,
Repeat, repeat the sounding joy.

He rules the world with truth and grace,
And makes the nations prove
The glories of His righteousness,
And wonders of His love,
And wonders of His love,
And wonders, and wonders of His love.

O Come, All Ye Faithful

O come, all ye faithful,
Joyfully triumphant,
O come ye, O come ye to Bethlehem!
Come and behold Him,
Born the King of Angels;

Chorus: O come, let us adore Him,
O come, let us adore Him,
O come, let us adore Him,
Christ, the Lord.

Sing, choirs of angels,
Sing in exultation!
O sing, all ye bright hosts of heaven above
Glory to God, all
Glory in the highest;

Yea, Lord, we greet Thee,
Born the happy morning,
Jesus, to Thee be all glory given;
Word of the Father,
Now in flesh appearing;

Dean Of Stephens College Is Invited As Special Guest To Holiday Party Of Mills Club

By Myra Johnson

Miss Helen Moreland, dean of Stephens College in Columbia, Mo., and former dean at Mills College, was invited as a special guest by the Mills College Club to their holiday tea this afternoon in the Leo Stoeckle home at 1330 Forty Fifth Street.

The visitor, who is in Sacramento during the Christmas vacation, is a sister of Mrs. John Quincy Brown and William Hale Moreland, Jr. The tea was planned to honor the undergraduates at Mills College from Sacramento and their mothers.

They include: Mrs. Kenneth Hammaker, Marjorie Hammaker, Dorothy Hammaker; Mrs. H. J. Bates, Mary Helen Bates; Mrs. James W. Trask, Yvonne Trask; Mrs. Gene Kenyon, Margaret Kenyon; Mrs. Elsie Holden, June Holden; Mrs. Kenneth W. Dowie, Erica Dowie; Mrs. J. B. Harris, Salle June Harris; Mrs. A. N. Kangas, Elizabeth Kangas; Mrs. Fred C. Nelson, Patricia Joan Nelson; Mrs. G. E. Noyes, Marie Noel Noyes; Mrs. Harold J. Thielen, Louise Thielen; Mrs. Alexander Peter White, Tamara White; Mrs. Thomas B. Sills, Alice Sills; Mrs. N. M. Sellers, Virginia Sellers; Mrs. K. W. Kendrick, Miss Margaret Kendrick; Mrs. Joseph Kehoe, Margaret Kehoe; Mrs. Helen Davidson, Doris Davidson; Mrs. Bernard Rea, Miss Marcia Rea, and Mrs. Leo Stoeckle.

Mesdames James Walters, Sumner Mering and Warner Wilson were asked to preside at the tea table.

WINE QUIZ

Do you know?

That a grape vine planted in California 170 years ago by the Spanish Padres is still producing 10 tons of grapes a year?

That many of Europe's fine vineyards are growing from root stocks imported from California?

That a "dry" wine is purposely made tart and dry (not sweet) for serving with meals, to accent food flavors?

That a "sweet" wine is purposely made full-bodied and rich in flavor to complement desserts and refreshments?

That any wine—red or white—may be served with any food, according to your preference?

That red wines are made from dark grapes fermented with the skins—white wines from the juice of grapes fermented without the skins?

Tibbett Steps 'Out' in S. F. and Noonan Gets Role

LAWRENCE TIBBETT, left, California-born world famous baritone, has been forced to cancel contract with the San Francisco Opera company due to a persistent throat infection. For Sacramentans, at least, this bad news is offset by the announcement that Stanley Noonan, right, capital baritone, will have an important role in the company's presentation of "Carmen."
